A WORLD-WIDE CHURCH COMING

PETTY DIFFERENCES BEING PUT ASIDE, SAYS GLADDEN.

GIVES TWO STRONG ADDRESSES

DECLARES GREED FOR MONEY IS GREAT CURSE.

THERE IS NO PERSONAL DEVIL.

Speaker Points Out Many Serious Defects in the Church in Closing Address of Colorado College Religious and Ethical Conference.

A world-wide church, in which petty differences as to creed form of worship and ceremonies will give way to the essential and fundamental doctrines of Christianity, was predicted yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr Washington Gladden in his address on "Where Are We in Religion?" delivered to an audience that filled Perkins hall. Dr Gladden showed how the tendencies of the times are toward union, and toward the realization of the real mission of the church to Christianize all parts of the world.

At the same time Dr. Gladden pointed out many serious defects in the church, the one upon which he laid most emphasis being its "equivocal stand against commercialism, the greatest curse of the day." He told of the broadening of the views of the church within the last 30 years, and declared that there is no longer a belief in a personal devil or a hell.

In his evening address Dr. Gladden spoke on "Recollections of a Lifetime."

Dr Gladden left on the 9.40 Rock Island train for his home in Columbus, Ohio. At both of the day's meetings, which were attended by a crowded house, Dean Edward S. Parsons of Colorado College presided.

"Where Are We in Religion?"

"Where Are We in Religion?" was the concluding address of the series of five which Dr. Gladden gave at the religious and ethical conference, the closing session of which was held yesterday afternoon at Perkins hall. After giving figures showing the relative strength of the various religions, he went on to say:

"Christianity is far stronger than all the rest, and every decade adds to the preponderance of the Christian forces. It is not a visionary expectation to see the kingdom of the world become the kingdom of Jesus Christ." Then taking up the discussion of the various branches of the Christian church, he said that the Greek church is badly in need of reform, that the Roman Catholic church as a whole is steadily improving, that its outlook under the enlightened leadership of the last century is far more hopeful, and that the protestant church is stronger today than ever before in history.

Progress in Uniformity.

"The protestant churches of this country are making considerable progress in the direction of uniformity," he said. "It looks as if the time is coming when we will be Christians and be happy in that knowledge. We have all borne the Christian name but that has been a secondary and subordinate matter. The chief emphasis has not been on what was taught by Jesus Christ but on some philosophy, dogma or form of worship. Christianity has been secondary to methods of church organization, form of ritual and other considerations. In this respect there is a steady change for the better. As partisan politics is losing power so the secular spirit in religion and men are coming to realize that their first allegiance is to the kingdom of God. When the traditional groups find a common denominator and discard the significance of creed it will be a simple method to add them together.

Advocates Union of Churches

"Integrating forces are coming to [illegible]. Never before have there been [illegible] tendencies to unite such as are [illegible] known in all parts of the Christian church. The recent conference in [illegible] 18,000,000 people were represented [illegible] which agreed upon a platform for [illegible] of co-operative work is [illegible] sign of the times. It is significant that [illegible] northern Presbyterians and the Cumberland Presbyterians have ended their bitter doctrinal division. But of more importance are the two movements now in progress. In Canada, the Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists are making persistent efforts to reach a creed and form of government to which all can agree. In our own country I am willing to accept as final the statements that a proposed union can not be effected between the Congregationalists and other denominations.

"Where are we in theology? There is no uniform opinion. The fact that there are widely different beliefs is most encouraging and creditable. The dogma of God because it is still [illegible] lends itself to so many different interpretations. There is a great variety of religious opinion from the stiffest conservatism to the limberest liberalism. In the last half century Christianity has made many profitable [illegible]. It had rid itself of many nightmares and much cumbersome baggage.

There Is no Devil.

"The belief in a personal devil as the supreme ruler of the kingdom of evil, endowed with powers inferior only to those of God, [illegible] and almost [illegible] [illegible]

those who believe that malign spirits still exist, a central kingdom of evil, organized and led by such a character as Milton's Satan, is not properly conceivable by the proper mind.

"But who shall say that anything essential to the Christian faith is wanting? A great united church, if it can be united, is far stronger, standing on a broad platform, than a great theological fortress with dubious barricades which it must spend a great deal of its time in defending.

Room for Improvement.

"Is the church exercising its proper influence? What is its hold on the people? In membership, the Christian church is gaining ground. The church is not an insignificant force in human society today. It has not suffered any loss in its comprehension of its real mission—that of saving the world and not merely a few people. Its understanding of its mission is clearer and broader today—to make the spirit of Christ inspire all work, to Christianize society in all its parts. It is making its power felt more effectively and yet the failure of all these ages to comprehend its real mission is one long tragedy. There is still a great gulf between what it is and what it ought to be. The church has but feebly and partially grasped the great truths. Too large a portion of its constituents are concerned with getting people away from earth to heaven, instead of bringing the kingdom of heaven

DISORDER SUPPRESSED

CONDITIONS IN KOREA ARE GREATLY IMPROVED.

Reinforcements of Gendarmes Numbering About 5,000, Scattered Over Outlying Districts.

SEOUL, May 15.—Conditions throughout Korea are improving. The determination of Prince Ito, the resident general here, to suppress the disorderly element so that the peaceful farming population may prosecute their work in the outlying districts, where armed bandits are harassing the farms and villages, is shown by the prompt arrival of reinforcements of gendarmes, numbering about 5,000, who will be scattered throughout Korea.

Prince Ito has issued strict instructions to Japanese soldiers and civilians that they must not treat the Koreans as a conquered people, but the rights of all law-abiding citizens must be respected under penalty of severe punishment. Four thousand Korean police under Japanese officers, will be enlisted and trained. Four hundred new telephone and telegraph offices will be established in the districts infested by revolutionists, so that easy communication may be had with the soldiers and police. The crop prospect throughout Korea is excellent.

Prince Ito today attended the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of Chemulpo to foreign trade. He was accompanied to Chemulpo by his suite, a number of foreign consuls and the Korean minister of agriculture.

Chemulpo was en fete. At a banquet, Prince Ito in his address spoke of the peaceful and friendly development of Korea in order that the Koreans might in the future have independence under a stable government and become a friendly ally of Japan. He said further that in order to secure these ends, order must be restored and agriculture, commerce, manufacture and education must be improved. This he said, was the aim and purpose of the Japanese occupation.

The American consul Sammons who followed said that the American interests in Korea were larger than those of any other foreign nation, especially in mining and missionary work. Experience had proved that the talk of a closed door in Korea was unfounded. Americans [illegible] [illegible] sought to trade by means of active competition and intelligent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ARCHBISHOP BOURGADE DEAD

Heart Failure Ends Career of Divine at Age of 63

[illegible] May [illegible] Most Rev Peter Bourgade archbishop of Santa Fe died in a hospital here [illegible] [illegible] age of 63 years.

The archbishop came to Chicago May 4 from Hot Springs, Ark. He was suffering from a slight physical weakness but until yesterday had not been confined to his bed. On the contrary he took short drives on days when the weather permitted and his condition was not considered serious. Yesterday, feeling more than usually indisposed he remained in bed. He had a sinking spell early today from which he appeared to have rallied, when he was again stricken and died at 9 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev [illegible], chaplain of the hospital and Rev Thomas Caraher of Buffalo, the latter a patient in the hospital were at his bedside.

Archbishop Bourgade had held his present charge since January [illegible] 1899. Born and educated in France, he went to Arizona as a missionary in 1871, was ordained at Santa Fe the same year and began work at Yuma in 1870. He was consecrated in 1885 vicar apostolic of Arizona with the titular rank of bishop of Thaumaco, and resided at [illegible] until promoted to be arch-[illegible]

DEPUTY SHERIFF ARRESTED

Said to Have Been Implicated in Express Robbery.

SPRINGER, N. M., May 17.—Deputy Sheriff W. H. Farmer of Dawson was arrested here today in connection with the robbery of the strong box of the Wells Fargo Express company, containing $35,000 at French last Thursday. Farmer had been detailed to guard the treasure from French to Dawson, where the money was to have been used in paying off miners.

Farmer was taken to Raton and incarcerated with two men arrested yesterday. It is reported, but unconfirmed that one of the men under arrest has confessed, implicating two men not yet apprehended.

NEGRO FIEND CAUGHT

BROUGHT TO THIS CITY FOR SAFE KEEPING.

Lynching Feared if Attempt Is Made to Take Murderer to Pueblo.

James Lynn, the negro fiend who broke into the home of Mrs Julia James (white), about 12 o'clock last Thursday night and shot and killed both Mrs. James and her 16-year-old daughter, Sarah, without apparent cause, and who made his escape that night, was arrested at Limon Junction, a station on the Rock Island road in the eastern part of the state yesterday afternoon, and brought to this city for safe keeping early this (Monday) morning. Since the feeling against him is at the highest pitch at present in Pueblo and a lynching is feared if the man is taken to that place, he will be kept in the county jail in Colorado Springs until it is considered safe to take him to the Smelter city. Lynn was brought to this city on the fast Rock Island freight, which is due here at 11:30 p. m., but which was several hours late last night, by Chief of Police McCafferty and Deputy Sheriff Fabrizio, who went to Limon as soon as they learned that the arrest had been made by Deputy Sheriff John Waley at that place.

Lynching Is Feared.

It was reported in Pueblo last night that a big mob had assembled at the depot for the purpose of lynching the negro it being the general belief that an effort would be made to take him directly to the jail in that city. Excitement was at fever heat, according to advices, but when it became known that the fiend was to be kept in Colorado Springs the mob dispersed. According to reports [illegible] it is probable that a lynching will be attempted when the negro is taken there for trial, since the victims of the brute were well-known and respected citizens.

Makes Confession.

Lynn was arrested by Deputy Wiley while in the act of begging food at the home of a colored family at Limon yesterday. An accurate description of him having been furnished all officers in the west by the Pueblo authorities. The man was half-starved and footsore having walked almost all the way to that place from Pueblo a distance of probably 90 miles. When arrested he had a revolver in which there were three empty chambers, evidence which in itself strongly linked him to the Pueblo tragedy because of the fact that the man fired three shots at the two victims of his dastardly crime. At first he denied that his name was Lynn and attempted to prove an alibi but is understood to have confessed later to being the man wanted.

According to the Pueblo police the negro claims that he shot the two women by accident during a gun fight with a man by the name of O'Neil. [illegible] says that he had been visiting [illegible] Mrs James regularly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

LIFTS FATHER KILL HIM

BOY CONSENTS TO DIE WITH FOSTER PARENT.

After Stabbing Youth Man Loses Nerve, Failing to Inflict Fatal Wound on Self

CHICAGO, May [illegible].—[illegible] to have been a [illegible] of Henry Bury, Ammann a German musician [illegible] and his [illegible]-year-old foster son Walter Knotz [illegible] together [illegible] today [illegible] Ammann was found staggering through the woods near [illegible] Sheridan delirious from self inflicted wounds.

The facts as gleaned from the musician's rambling statements when partially revived at the hospital was that Ammann for reasons not yet known led the boy into the forest and after wandering around for nearly two days had gained the boy's consent that Ammann should kill him. The body of the child was found this afternoon pierced through the heart by a knife [illegible]. Ammann had stabbed himself twice in the breast, but his wounds had not proved fatal. A letter was found in Ammann's pocket which he declared the boy had written and which tended to prove the latter knew what his fate was to be and welcomed it. The letter said:

"Please bury us together in one grave. Everything was against us. I do not want to live without my father. I go on my own [illegible]." The letter was signed [illegible] [illegible]

DEMOCRATS MEET IN MANY STATES

SEVERAL CONVENTIONS BOOKED FOR COMING WEEK.

CONGRESS MAY CLOSE SESSION

CURRENCY BILL CAUSE OF SOME ANXIETY.

MEETING OF MANUFACTURERS

Importance Is Attached to Convention Inasmuch as Political Attitude of Organization Will Likely Be Determined—Principal Events of the Week.

Convention political, industrial and religious, will have a considerable share in the news report of the week. Democratic state conventions will be held in half a dozen states to elect delegates to the Denver convention. Californians will meet in Fresno on Monday and on the same day the Washington state convention will be held in Spokane. Democratic primaries throughout Alabama will also be held on Monday. The Pennsylvania Democratic state convention will meet in Harrisburg on Tuesday and on that day Democratic primaries will be held to select national delegates and presidential electors in Florida. The New Jersey Presbyterian state convention is also scheduled for Tuesday at Trenton. Missouri Democrats will meet at Jefferson City and Michigan Democrats at Lansing on Wednesday. On Thursday, the Democrats of the District of Columbia will hold a district convention at Washington and on Saturday the Arizona state Democratic convention will meet in Phoenix.

Last Week of Session.

Both houses of Congress will begin business Monday with the idea that this will be the last week of the present session but opinions as to the exact date of adjournment vary all the way from Wednesday to Saturday. It does not seem probable that the conclusion will be reached before the latter day, but much will depend upon the progress of the conference on the currency bill.

The appropriation bills have reached such a state of completeness that there is little doubt that if necessary, the work on them could be finished within two or three days. Several of those measures are still in conference but all are near agreement. Only the general deficiency bill remains to be acted upon by the House and it probably will be passed before adjournment tomorrow. That bill and the military academy bill only remain for original consideration by the Senate and neither will require extended time there.

If nothing else in the way of legislation was desired, there would be no difficulty about getting away by the middle of the week but there is too much anxiety to obtain currency enactment to permit quitting without more prolonged effort.

Action of President Feared

There is some apprehension of a pocket veto of the various public buildings bill and there will be a resolution on adjournment [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] President may [illegible] with the measure [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] It may [illegible] [illegible] that congress [illegible] [illegible] known whether there will be [illegible] currency legislation and when [illegible] known that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] give the president a chance to [illegible]

The House will [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and will give much [illegible] [illegible] conference reports. It is expected that [illegible] will be made by the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] during the week and that both [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] If there [illegible] [illegible] by the conference the measure will be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Speeches for Week

Secretary Taft on his way to Washington from Panama will stop Thursday at Nashville where he will address the Tennessee Bar association. William J Bryan will speak at Baltimore on Tuesday and in Hagerstown Md on Wednesday. If his present plans are carried out and on Thursday Governor Johnson of Minnesota is expected to deliver an address at Richmond Va.

The National Association of Manufacturers having a membership of 3,000, representing a combined capital of $15,000,000,000 will meet in New York Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in annual convention. Considerable importance attaches to the proceedings as the association according to its president James W. Van Cleve of St Louis, will consider its political attitude with reference to the coming presidential campaign.

The Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration will hold its fourteenth annual conference on Lake Mohonk on Wednesday.

The Atlantic battleship fleet will leave San Francisco on Monday for [illegible] [illegible] while it is due to [illegible] [illegible] docked at Bremerton. With the exception of the one in dry dock all the ships will rendezvous on Saturday off Port Townsend and proceed to an anchorage in the vicinity of Seattle.

The French parliament, which adjourned for the Easter holidays, will reassemble in Paris on Tuesday.

ILLNESS INTERFERES.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The illness of Senators Elkins and Foraker combined with not a little politics has held up in the Senate for several days the passage of the Elkins resolution to suspend the operation of the commodities clause of the Heyburn railroad rate law. It is expected the resolution will be passed, however, as soon as these senators are able to return to their duties. There is considerable sentiment against the resolution even among those who have promised to vote for it.

GUNNESS MYSTERY IS TO BE TAKEN UP BY GRAND JURY.

Scenes of Last Sunday Repeated Yesterday at Farm.—Ten Thousand People Visit the Place.

LA PORTE, Ind., May 17.—The scenes of last Sunday were repeated today at the Gunness farm. Fully 10,000 people—not quite as many as a week ago—visited the farm of mystery and saw all there was to be seen even to viewing the skeletons of the seven unidentified dead, for the temporary morgue was open part of the day and persons were permitted to gaze at the bones of Mrs Gunness' [illegible]

Neighbors of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the grounds the people buying readily, nobody going away without a reminder of some kind. Refreshments also were dispensed on the grounds by enterprising owners of lemonade, ice cream and peanut stands. Excursion trains were run on the Pere Marquette and Lake Shore and Western railroads, while all Lake Shore trains carried extra coaches for La Porte. The traction cars were also crowded all day.

The La Porte county grand jury will convene tomorrow morning for the purpose of taking up the Gunness case. Forty-one summonses for witnesses have already been served and it is understood that at least 10 more witnesses will be called, making 50 in all. It is expected that from four to six days will be required for the grand jury to hear all of the evidence, and as no report is looked for until the end of the week. The grand jury is composed of six men.

Says His Extreme Caution in Answering Questions Caused His Apparent Nervousness

He looked at all the morning papers and told Jailer Havens that he did not think he was as nervous on the stand as some of the reporters described him. He said that he had tried to be careful of what he said and he thought it was his extreme caution that caused his apparent nervousness. He was fatigued he said when he went on the stand after the long court session. He also said that the changing of stenographers just after he took the stand caused him some confusion. He was glad that the trial was over. He said he had been told by his experts that his conduct on the stand had prejudiced his case, and he felt some discouragement.

Mrs. William Thaw his mother arrived here at 12 o'clock, and Thaw sent a note to Dr. Pilgrim asking him to call and see her. Thaw wished to have his mother cheered up for her [illegible] journey to Pittsburg and as she is not very well, he particularly [illegible] [illegible]

INVESTIGATION OF ASYLUM DESIRED

PUEBLO INTENDS PETITIONING THE GOVERNOR.

FEARS ESCAPE OF MANIACS

RECENT EXPERIENCE WITH NEGRO HAS AROUSED CITY.

CHARGE OF NEGLIGENCE FILED

Institution Was Admitted That No Especial Pains Had Been Taken to Prevent Escape of Madman Who Committed Murderous Assault.

PUEBLO, May 17.—The people of Pueblo fearful of the possibility of the escape of another maniac from the state insane asylum, have determined upon vigorous measures, and are now circulating a petition, which is receiving many signatures, requesting Governor H. A. Buchtel to order an inquiry into the manner in which Edward Mackelfee, the negro inmate who assaulted Mrs. E. A. Jones made his escape and also into the manner generally in which the institution is conducted along the lines of safeguarding the public and the inmates themselves.

Ever since the crazed negro, Mackelfee, made his escape from the institution and waylaid the unfortunate Mrs. Jones just one block from her home and inflicted wounds with a hatchet from which the victim is now confined to her bed, and from which it was at first thought she must certainly die, feeling in the northern and northwestern section of the city has been at fever heat.

Admit Negligence

It will be remembered that at the time the assault was made it was admitted at the asylum that no especial pains had been taken to prevent the escape of Mackelfee and the further fact will be recalled that upon the day immediately following the awful deed of the maniac another inmate, fortunately this time a harmless one, managed to effect his escape and was [illegible] [illegible] blocks of the place where the murderous assault had been committed.

Ever since that time the people resident anywhere near the asylum have been fearful of the escape of an inmate. Parents have watched their children with unusual solicitude, mothers have been wrought to a high state of nervous tension whenever their daughters were upon the streets alone, and even during the fine evenings of the past week, few women were upon the street unless accompanied by male escorts, and even men, ordinarily brave and courageous, have shuddered at the possibility of a recurrence of the awful happening of a few short weeks ago.

Men Carry Weapons.

It is stated upon reliable authority that many men, who, up to the time of the dread happening had never been known to carry arms upon their persons have not been upon the street after dark without weapons, and in many other cases heads of families have insisted upon the women of the households also possessing weapons in case of an unwelcome visit from a maniac.

Physicians in attendance state that he can not live. Nelson who has not been at work for several weeks has been acting queerly of late neighbors say. It is said the man has a family somewhere in Nebraska. Nelson lives at 417 Iron street.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 17.—Midshipman Arthur Linford Lucas of Cleveland, O., of the graduating class was drowned today, and Midshipman Carl D. Hibbard of Northfield, Minn., who was with him at the time, nearly lost his own life in an effort to save his friend.

Immediately after dinner at the academy the two started out in a 16-foot canvas canoe. They had proceeded from the boathouse around the Santee dock when the canoe was capsized by the wash of a passing schooner. Lucas lost his grip upon the overturned canoe and [illegible] signs of distress almost immediately. ZEBS ARE BLANKED

LOSE SECOND GAME OF SERIES TO LUXUS, 1 TO 0.

Ballinger Pitches Again and Retrieves Saturday's Defeat—Wasson Twirls for Colorado.

Special to The Gazette.
DENVER, May 17.—The Brewers, around whom the Zebs from Pikes Peak played rings in yesterday's game, turned the tables today, shutting out the Colorado Springs aggregation to the tune of 1 to 0. Ballinger, who was easy for the heavy strikers from Roswell park in yesterday's game, pleaded hard with Manager Reid to pitch again today and he justified the confidence placed in him, his work being a big factor in the Denver victory. In only two innings was he hittable, and then he pulled himself out of bad holes by striking out the batters or disposing of them with infield chances.

Thirty-five hundred people saw the game, which was as pretty a baseball contest as has been seen here in many a day. Wasson was in good form against his University of Colorado running mate, but he had two bad innings, the first and the eighth, when the Denverites bunched their hits and scored their four runs. Three hits and a wild throw to first gave them the lead in the first inning, but it was not until the eighth that the Brewers scored again. Then a base on balls and hits by Dicke, Davis and Mesch scored two more. In the ninth the Zebs became dangerous, but it was too late. Both teams played a good fielding game.

Downey, a Western leaguer, took Birkendahl's place at short for Denver, the Luxus manager having a bad finger. The score:

TRINIDAD RETAINS ITS LEAD

Defeats Cripple Creek, 4 to 1—Metz Injured at Critical Stage of Game.

Special to The Gazette.
TRINIDAD, May 17.—Still maintaining its lead in the Colorado State Baseball association, Trinidad today won its second victory from Hanley's Cripple Creek outfit. The score was 4 to 1. The largest crowd of the season, numbering 1400, was on hand to see the locals trounce the Gold Diggers.

Metz, the big twirler for the visitors, strained a muscle in the third inning and retired with the bases full, two out, and two strikes on the batter. Chevalier, who succeeded him, passed the batter, forcing in a run. He steadied down afterwards and pitched a good game.

Next Saturday and Sunday the Trinidad team appears in Colorado Springs. The score:

The race for The Gazette pennant is on. Cree's pitching was the main factor in the victory for the Cave of the Winds team. He shut out the Yeomen for six innings, but in the next two they got six runs, too late, however, to affect the final result. The line-up:

Pikes Peaks Protest.

The trouble in the Pikes Peak-Sunshiners game arose over the fact that the rules allow each team only one substitute, it being declared by Manager Blood of the Pikes Peaks that the Sunshiners were four short and picked the necessary men out of the crowd of spectators. The protest will be decided at a meeting of the directors tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The Pikes Peaks got 12 hits off Young, while Graham's delivery yielded only six. Following is the line-up:

BRIEF BITS OF NEWS

CARACAS, Venezuela, May 17.—The Venezuelan government made its regular monthly payments on account of foreign claims in spite of the curtailment of revenues, resulting from the closing of the port of La Guaira. There have been no new cases of bubonic plague at La Guaira for four days and should four days more go by without a case, the port will be reopened.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The two-stage ammunition hoists are to be installed on the battleships South Carolina, Michigan, Delaware and South Dakota. This is the general type of hoist used on British warships and has been recommended for the American type as likely to contribute to the rapidity of fire.

LAFAYETTE, Colo., May 17.—Fire today, originating in the dump, destroyed all the surface building of the mines of the Standard Coal and Land company, located a mile east of here. The loss is estimated at $25,000. The mines were not working today and consequently there was no loss of life.

LONDON, May 17.—An official telegram, received by an Indian office, reports 27 deaths from cholera in the regiment of Munster fusileers, which a week ago was sent into the cholera camp from Major General Willcocks' force now operating against the Mohamads.

MUNICH, May 17.—The Bavarian exposition was opened here yesterday by the prince regent with gorgeous civic and military display. The exposition is illustrative of the arts and industries of Bavaria and will remain open until October. It was organized under the patronage of the prince regent, and an effort has been made to make it the central attraction for the coming summer.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Secretary of the Navy Victor H. Metcalf arrived in Washington tonight from San Francisco, where he reviewed the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets last week.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Nineteen men passed and 11 failed of the 30 who presented themselves for the April examinations for the grade of consul and appointments to the student interpreter corps. This is a higher proportion of successful candidates than at any previous examination. Among those who passed the examination for consul were the following: Cornelius Ferris of Colorado, John Q. Wood of Hawaii, Fred C. Slater and Frank Rohrer of Kansas.

CLEVELAND IS QUIET

STREET CAR SITUATION MUCH IMPROVED.

Proposition to Arbitrate, It Is Said, Has Been Launched.—Little Violence Attempted.

CLEVELAND, O., May 17.—Aside from a few minor disturbances, the street car strike situation today was quiet, while the service given by the Municipal Traction company was greatly improved. A police officer rode on each car and screens of heavy wire were provided for the motorman's vestibule. Only one instance of a serious attempt to attack the crew of a car was reported, when a crowd of boys and men sent a volley of stones and sticks at a Miles avenue car. Some of the stones and missiles found their mark and the conductor drew a pistol, the police say, firing one shot. No one was hit.

On many of the lines the company inaugurated the usual full quota of runs that are in effect on Sundays. In the business section of the city quiet prevailed and no crowds gathered. At the barns in the outlying sections there were gatherings of men and boys, who jeered the cars as they came in or departed. Vice President Behner of the railwaymen's union visited nearly every car barn today to note the situation. He reported everything quiet and satisfactory.

International President W. D. Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric railway Employes, arrived here today from Chicago. He at once went into conference with Vice President Behner and members of the local executive committee. Mr. Mahon also met Joseph Bishop and Judge Selwynn Owen of the state board of arbitration. The state arbitrators still are endeavoring to have the union and President Dupont of the Municipal Traction company come to some understanding.

The state arbitrators admitted today that they had seen President Dupont and that a proposition to arbitrate had been launched. What Mr. Dupont's attitude is they would not state. Another conference will be held with Mr. Dupont. Mr. Mahon called upon the arbitrators twice today.

LETS FATHER KILL HIM

was in a child's handwriting. Another letter written by Ammann, read:

"Please get my boy, 200 yards northeast of Fort Sheridan."

All day Ammann lay on a cot at the fort and raved about the deed. "I have killed my own son," he muttered over and over. "He knew that I intended to die and he did not want to be separated from me. He smiled when I raised the knife. He was a brave little fellow and not afraid as I, to die."

From Mrs. Knobel, mother of the child, it was learned that Ammann had repeatedly asked her to marry him during the past eight years since the death of her husband, but she had refused. He had also made demands upon her for money and had threatened to kill the boy if she did not give it to him. Great affection, she said, had existed between the child and Ammann.

NEW USE FOR TYPEWRITER.

From the New York Globe.

To be inclined to literature and at the same time not able to spell correctly is the double affliction of a young woman of New York who, at the same time, manages thus to keep the wolf from the door. Heretofore she has done all the work with a pen and turned the manuscripts over to a stenographer to conceal the terrible truth about the spelling. The other day, however, this literary person began seriously to study the use of the typewriter. When asked her reason, she denied that it was a matter of economy.

"You see, I want to learn to spell," she explained. "When I use a pen no one can tell whether I spell things correctly or not. But if I use a typewriter it will be necessary for me to learn to spell or lose my reputation. I am, therefore, in a manner, using 'force against myself.'"

GERMANY WANTS GOLD

HAS ENGAGED $3,000,000 IN NEW YORK.

Move Occasions Surprise Since Bankers Will Not Profit by Transaction Because of Exchange Price.

BERLIN, May 17.—News that $3,000,000 gold has been engaged in New York for Germany causes some surprise here because the price of exchange makes it impossible for Berlin bankers to import American gold at a profit.

Some gold—probably about $1,250,000—arrived at the German Imperial bank this week from Australia and $3,500,000 more is engaged for shipment next week.

Doubt is expressed in German financial circles whether the imports of American gold will continue, owing to the present level of exchange, which is likely to rise through the gold imports. All the leading exchange rates were advanced today for this cause.

As gold imports from New York are unprofitable at the present level of exchange, it is assumed that the German Imperial Bank is advancing money to bankers, interest free, in order to effect operations. Another ground for expecting the gold arrivals to remain small is that the German money market is growing easier. It is believed that the German Imperial bank soon will reduce the discount rate, especially if the Bank of England makes a reduction.

The Bourse regards the gold movement in Wall Street with considerable distrust, in view of the reduced earnings of American railways and declining iron prices.

ARABS ARE PUT TO FLIGHT

PARIS, May 17.—Official dispatches from General Vigya, commander of the French forces in Algeria, who engaged in a fierce fight with Arabs on Thursday, states that he occupied Boudenib, the stronghold of Mulai-Hassan, after vigorously shelling the tribesmen, who numbered 6,000. The enemy dispersed in all directions, abandoning their camp and large quantities of stores and ammunition. They suffered severe losses owing to admirable handling of the artillery by the French. The latter lost three killed and nine wounded.

According to the dispatches, the occupation had a widespread effect throughout the region, a number of submissions already having resulted.

is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

[illegible] Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent [illegible] of the [illegible] say of them.

WILLIE COLLIER COMING.

William Collier and his great laughing farce, "Caught in the Rain," will be seen at the Opera House next week.

Mr. Collier's popularity was never greater than it is now, and it is probable that at no time in his career has he succeeded in making his audiences laugh so often and so heartily as he is doing at present. Dick Crawford, the character he plays in the new farce, is a genuine revelation of good nature and breezy good humor. Dick is liked by everybody, and is not only handy with repartee, and the ready wit that a western character usually possesses, but he has the human quality in greater proportion than many comedy characters possess it, and he comes nearer being the real article in lovemaking, fortune-seeking, vicissitude-fighting, and all the other joys and troubles of a hero, than any character the stage has offered in a long while. Mr. Collier succeeds in making his audiences catch his own bubbling and inimitable spirit, and he has them with him in a happy and delighted frame of mind all through the evening. "Caught in the Rain" ran the major part of last season at the Garrick theater in New York. Charles Frohman has surrounded Mr. Collier with a powerful company, including Albert Perry, John Saville, Richard Sterling, Reginald Mason, W. H. Post, Thomas Beauregard, Thomas Martin, Charles Poore, John Adam, Thomas Lennon, Ellen Mortimer, Jane Laurel, Helena Collier-Garrick and Anne Bradley.

CURTIS MUSICAL COMEDY CO.

The coming attraction at the Opera House will be the Allen Curtis Musical Comedy company for three nights and Saturday matinee, commencing next Thursday, May 21, presenting the latest and most successful New York and Chicago musical successes. The open bill will be the big laughing show, "Jakey, Mikey and Ikey."

This organization numbers 25 people, everyone an artist in their respective lines. Allen Curtis, who is by no means a stranger here, heads the big army of entertainers, and he has surrounded himself with one of the strongest casts of musical comedy players in the business. The beauty chorus, gorgeously gowned, have made a reputation for themselves of being the best picked lot of singers and dancers seen with a musical organization this season. The music with all of the productions be all entirely new and of the latest New York publications. There will be 12 big musical numbers in each show, which is worth the price of admission alone. High class specialties will be introduced during the action of each play. Popular prices. Matinee, children 10c, adults 25c. Evening, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

AT THE EMPIRE.

Sparkling with wit, humor, good singing and clever dancing, the bill at the Empire for the coming week is a sure hit from start to finish. Every act is a headliner and as put on by the best artists in vaudevilleism. Manager Ellis has spared neither time nor money in his bookings and all those who attend the popular Empire this week will appreciate his efforts to please a critical and discriminating public.

Baker and Carlisle, colored aristocrats, are natural musicians and offer a musical treat far above the average. Wonderful piano playing and exceptional singing characterize their act. They will play on two pianos at once and are sure to make a hit in this city.

Another act of unusual merit is that of the Stadium Trio, who close their vaudeville contract here this week to join one of the largest circus companies on the road. To those who appreciate clever tumbling and all-around gymnastic work this act will prove a treat.

Martyne and Hardy furnish the comedy for the performance, and those who have seen this popular team act can vouch for their ability in the laugh-getting line. They have a series of character changes that is a winner and a line of new jokes and songs that are entirely new.

The illustrated song for this week is "I Will Be Waiting, Dearie, When You Come Back Home." In addition to the above program two sets of the latest motion pictures will be shown. Don't fail to attend the Empire this week.

to earth. It has done too much fussing with ceremonials to the neglect of the weightier matters of judgment, mercy and faith.

Worship of Money.

"The church has done much against liquor, but against how many forces of injustice and cruelty has its stand been in doubt or has it uttered only a feeble cry of protest? The one great curse of the present day is commercialism, covetousness, worship of money. Before this, the attitude of the church is too often equivocal, and not as it ought to be, positive, unanimous and irresistible.

"But the kingdom of God is coming, whether by the church or not. Organized greed and cruelty will be overthrown whether the church is in the fight or not. Nothing is more evident than the great moral awakening which is taking place. Principles of conduct are recognized as never before. There never has been so much faith in the essential truths of religion as today."

Lifetime Recollections.

Optimism was the keynote of Dr. Gladden's evening address, which he concluded by declaring that, if he had another 70 years to live he would ask nothing better than to be guaranteed a life in such a world as this. "Recollections of a Lifetime" was his theme, and he devoted much of his time to telling of his memories of the slavery conflict and the days of the Civil war, as well as to pointing out the changes that have come about in the map of the globe, and to the events and movements in the world of thought.

"The slavery fight was in the open," he said. "The conflict of the last few years has been in another field and more dangerous. President Roosevelt has an uglier fight on his hands than President Lincoln. It is no less momentous. If the real issue were as clear as it was 40 years ago, it would not be long before the fight would be on."

Revolution in Thought.

Discussing the revolution in thought that has come as a result of geological discoveries, he said:

"Some people are anxious lest we lose our religion. We lose the husk and find the kernel. We lose the chrysalis and find the butterfly. In our old laborious thinking we put God far away. Religion was only a tradition. But he manifests himself in every natural force. He is working now as mightily and sweetly as with Adam and Moses. Religion is not an appendage to life, but the whole of life."

At the conclusion of his address he said:

"It is a good thing to live. There may be better worlds, but if I had it to do over again, I would like to be guaranteed 70 years in just such a world as this. There will be suffering and sorrow, privations and hardships, hard knocks and tough luck. I have had all of these, and I would not ask to be protected from them. They are good for any man who will hold his head up and keep a trusting heart. One thing is sure. If it ever was worth while to live, it is worth while to live today. There has been no better day on this continent than that through which we are now passing. The foundations may seem to be crumbling under our feet, with the many exposures that are being made in the high places, but to my mind this is a magnificent revelation of the moral soundness of the American people. It is not the rottenness and rascality that is significant but the mighty reversion of public sentiment against sordid selfishness. The blackness of the shadow proves only the intensity of the light."

Great Work to Be Done.

"There never was more reason for hope and courage than today. there never was a time when the response of the people to higher motives was quicker. We are in an epoch in the awakening of the American people. There are great industrial problems. We shall work them out. There are battles to be fought. We shall win them. Believe in justice and the square deal, in kindness, in a free field and a fair chance, and victory is assured. You who are younger, there are great things yet. Go forth to meet them with a psalm ... Good for Old and Young Constipation prevails in almost every family. Old and young suffer alike. The matron of a great New York hospital confidently states that the following has been used for years with the utmost success, treating thousands, old and young, for acute and chronic constipation: Compound Essence Cardiol, 1 ounce; Aromatic Fluid Cascara, 1 ounce; Aromatic Syrup Rhubarb, 2 ounces.

Dose—One-half to one teaspoonful after each meal. Children less, according to age.

Get the ingredients at any well-stocked drug store, mix them and find instant relief, and a permanent cure.

thing to cause her anxiety. The note did not reach Dr. Pilgrim in time for him to get to the court house before Mrs. Thaw left, shortly after 3 o'clock, for New York. Thaw and his mother attended the services conducted in the jail for the prisoners, who used the hymn books purchased by Thaw for the jail.

Justice Morschauser will go to White Plains tomorrow to sit there for a week. He will then return to his home here the latter part of the week, having, in the meantime, received the briefs in the case from Messrs. Jerome and Graham, and he has promised to hand down his decision on the following Monday.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Efforts will be made by Daniel O'Reilly, counsel for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, to secure a further adjournment of the hearing scheduled for Tuesday next in the proceedings brought by Mrs. Thaw for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw. Former Judge Deyo is referee in the case. Mr. O'Reilly will base a request for a further postponement on the ground that certain evidence which he expects to present is being utilized in the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings. Mrs. Thaw contends that her husband was insane at the time of their marriage on April 4, 1905.

Col. Franklin Bartlett, one of Thaw's attorneys, says that he will move to have the proceedings dismissed when the case comes up Tuesday. He probably will object to a further postponement.

WARSHIPS SAIL TODAY

ATLANTIC FLEET WILL LEAVE FOR PUGET SOUND.

Admiral Sperry, in Speech at Last Function, Compliments Men Under His Command.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—The Atlantic fleet of battleships, after 12 days of naval pageantry and merrymaking in San Francisco harbor, sails tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for Puget Sound, arriving off Seattle on May 22. One-half of the ships will dock at Bremerton navy yard, while north, and the others will return here for repairs and painting beneath the water line. Play days in Puget Sound will be over before the end of the month and then the officers and men will resume the usual routine of man o' war life. Orders call for the reassembling of the fleet in San Francisco harbor not later than July 3. On July 7 the fleet sails for Honolulu and after a week's stay there, goes direct to Auckland.

The Pacific fleet of armored cruisers, under command of Rear Admiral Dayton, sailed south this morning at 3 o'clock and Rear Admiral Sperry, in command of the Atlantic fleet, hoisted for the first time his commanding flag of blue. Being junior in lineal rank to Admiral Dayton, Admiral Sperry was compelled by naval regulations to fly a subordinate flag of red so long as the Pacific fleet remained at this station. The long line of armored cruisers, which sailed for Santa Barbara, was headed by the flagship West Virginia and included the Colorado, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Washington and California. The protected cruiser Charleston, flagship of Rear Admiral Swinburne, also sailed with the fleet, but her destination is Monterey. The gunboat Yorktown accompanied the cruisers to Santa Barbara. The South Dakota, one of the eight armored cruisers composing the second squadron of the Pacific fleet, which returned late yesterday from her official trip, did not sail with the others.

The last of the official entertainments provided here for Atlantic and Pacific fleets was the banquet tendered last night at the Fairmont hotel by San Francisco council 615, Knights of Columbus, to the petty officers of the two fleets. The arrangements for the affair were carried out by the Rev. Father Gleason, chaplain of the flagship Connecticut. The other admirals, Sperry and Thomas, both spoke and there were in attendance Captains Southerland of the New Jersey and Nicholson of the Nebraska. Many wives of officers and petty officers were also among the diners. Admiral Sperry made the first speech since assuming command of the Atlantic fleet. He spoke directly and pointedly. He declared that the enlisted men of the navy were the bulwarks in the defense of the nation.

"Their training," he continued, "is on them in the hands of the petty officers who stand between the ... and the commanding officers. We have now in the navy the most splendid body of young men that could be selected in all the world. Above everything else they are American gentlemen and their training should always be along that line. BANK FORCED TO WALL

MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS LEADS TO SUSPENSION.

Allegheny National Bank of Pittsburg Closes Its Doors—Further Apparent Discrepancies Found.

PITTSBURG, May 17.—It is officially announced tonight that the Allegheny National bank, whose former cashier, William Montgomery is in jail specifically charged with misappropriation of $594,000 while officers of the bank and of the treasury department is trying to fathom still larger apparent discrepancies in the banks funds and will not reopen for business tomorrow. Instead a notice on the door will announce that the comptroller of the currency has taken charge and will close up the affairs of the bank.

Until late today it had been expected by Bank Examiner William L. Folds, who discovered the alleged peculations and made the charges again Montgomery and by the officers and directors of the bank that the institution would weather the storm and be able to continue business. To this end a number of strong financial institutions and prominent capitalists of the city offered assistance and provided $250,000 cash, while the directors provided a like amount to meet immediate needs or provide for possible emergencies. At the same time a complete reorganization was decided upon and a new cashier and other officers were practically agreed upon. A hitch occurred in these plans yesterday and all of today was spent in conferences attended by Examiner Folds, representing the treasury department, the bank's directors and the financiers who had proffered aid. After a careful review of the situation, suspension of the bank was decided upon as the only logical course, but this decision was scarcely announced until a new ray of hope appeared. The announcement was withdrawn and the conference reconvened to discuss the new suggestion for continuing business. Finally, however, it was agreed to stand by the earlier decision and to liquidate.

The suspension of the bank, it is believed, will have practically no effect upon commercial or financial institutions of the city. It has been largely discounted by the events of the past week and besides the private and commercial deposits of the bank are very small, amounting to not over $300,000.

RELIGIOUS GATHERING

PAN-ANGLICAN CONFERENCE AT LONDON IN JUNE.

Delegates From a Thousand Dioceses Throughout World Have Been Selected to Attend.

LONDON, May 17.—Delegates from a thousand dioceses scattered throughout the world have been selected to attend the pan-Anglican conference to be held in London in June. These delegates, including laymen and clergymen, will in most cases be accompanied by their bishops, and if the prophecy of the organizers is fulfilled, the congress will rank among the great gatherings of religious works.

Most of the American bishops have sent their acceptances, and as each diocese in the United States will also send one or more clergy and laymen, America will be well represented, both as regards numbers and ability; all the colonies will have their spokesmen and missionaries from every portion of the globe are coming to tell of work among native tribes.

The program of the congress embraces problems of a diverse character and in order to get through the list of papers the work has been divided into six sections, which will sit simultaneously during the week of June 16 to June 22.

The various sections will discuss the church and human society, Christian truth and other intellectual forces, the church ministry, missions in non-Christian lands, missions in christendom, and the Anglican communion.

To the general public, perhaps the most interesting section is that which discusses the relations of the church to human society, as all sorts of present-day political and economical problems are touched upon.

SIDESTEPPING A TARANTULA.

Second Mate Reports Pleasing Game of Tag on Board a Fruit Steamer.

From the New York Times.

"He was off Hatteras last Sat'day when the tranatula, six by six, comes a-flying out to me," observed Second Mate Peavey, of the United Fruit company's steamer Admiral Sampson. The Sampson had just come in from Port Antonio, Jamica, laden with bananas and a trantula story, and frosted with ice of a nor'wester.

"We was loaded with bananas, as I say," continued the second mate, "an' off Hatteras we run into a nor'wester, which is why we had to batten down all the hatches. Now, bananas must have plenty of air, so after a while I goes to open up the forward hatch a little.

"Scoot! The thing was out at my feet—six by six inches, black as ole Nick, only speckled a little, an' seemin' to enjoy the cold weather.

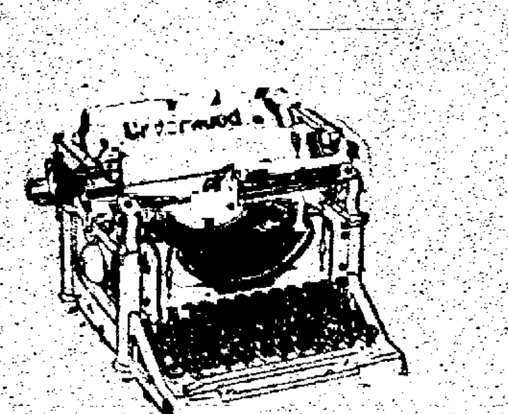

"The decks was covered thick with ice,—an' the riggin' was all white an' sparkly stuff. Yes, it was like a Christmas card. An' that thing stood there on the deck, about three feet away, a-raising and a-lowering hisself on his long legs, as if he was taken' a good aim before he lep. I picks up a chunk of ice an' lets it fly. He simply sidesteps—an' with grace, mind you, as easy as a feather weight.

"There was no help. The passengers was eating their lunches, an' there wasn't nobody of the crew on the deck. I plays for time till I gets a iron bar. Then I taps him across the bow. He never laughs out loud, but he smiled. He walks with long swings toward me.

"I goes against a hard gale to the starboard quarter, him after me. I takes to the riggin', him after me. The fallin' ice don't feaze him. Finally when he is right on me, I jabs him through with the iron bar an' he sinks down, dead. Turrible things, these tarantulas."

Captain Henshaw said he had nothing to tell personally about any tarantula, but Second Mate Peavey was one of the most truthful seafaring men he ever knew.

DEBT TO COLORADO COLLEGE.

THE service which Colorado College steadily renders to the material prosperity of this city obtains increasing recognition from our most clear-sighted business men. An institution which in the last eighteen years has spent in the town some $600,000 in the erection of buildings, and has given to the city, for its park system, twenty acres of land, worth perhaps $50,000; an institution whose local expenditure, through manifold channels, is estimated to amount to $200,000 yearly, is a very large factor in the commercial life of the community. Furthermore, the educational advantages which the College offers, not only attract individual students, but whole families, who are drawn primarily by that consideration, but who come to like the place so well that they ultimately make it their permanent home. Regarded merely as a financial asset, the presence of the College in our midst counts for as much as the location of any sort of national home, welcome as these institutions are.

The contribution of the College to the intellectual life of the city and of the state is still more important. The presence in the community of some fifty professors—liberally educated men, with degrees from Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, Princeton, Oxford, Paris, etc., etc., together with their families; the scores of lectures given by them in this city and in College Extension work all over the state, and even as far east as Michigan, and as far west as California, the distinguished scholars and publicists whom the College is constantly bringing to her platform from all over America and from England, supply to Colorado Springs sources of culture such as probably no city west of Chicago enjoys. But best of all is the contribution which the College is making to the moral and religious life of the city and of our commonwealth. Of this in[illegible] the conference which was held last week is a signal illustration. While men like President Slocum and Professor E. S. Parsons are heard from the pulpits of practically all religious denominations all over our state and on public occasions of all sorts; while the young men and women who graduate from the institution, go forth as far as Korea and Japan, "to bring light to those who sit in darkness," and to elevate and enlarge the thoughts of men concerning the sovereign questions of life and conduct, such a conference as has been held during this last week offers a vivid and splendid example of what the College is doing for the enlightenment of public opinion and the guidance of private and public action in such provinces as health, charity, education, industry, marriage and divorce, political life, social morality and religion. Such papers as those of President Slocum and Professor Parsons and Dr. Pershing, and the great audiences that have gathered to hear the memorable addresses of Washington Gladden and Graham Taylor, illustrate the desire of the people for light on the difficult moral problems of our time and make plain also how admirable a purveyor of such light Colorado College is.

THE "DECLARATION OF CO-OPERATION."

THE conference of governors and other statesmen at Washington ended in a dignified and proper manner. The declaration it adopted, drawn up by Governor Blanchard of Louisiana is a document that must command respectful attention. No effort was made to create a formal organization or to turn this body into an organization. It was simply recommended that the President, from time to time in the future as seems to him wise, shall call similar conferences. It may or may not be significant that the declaration suggests that members of Congress be invited to such future meetings.

The declaration adopted covers two classes of subjects—matters which can be attended to by the general government only, and matters which must be attended to by the governments of the several states. Each state is recommended to appoint a conservation commission of its own to co-operate with similar commissions appointed in other states, and with any similar commission appointed on behalf of the federal government. Each state is desired to adopt laws which will, so far as possible, prevent waste in the extraction of minerals from the ground, and secure the protection of underground [illegible]. These [illegible] things belong to the states alone.

It is also recommended that forest preservation be continued and extended. This belongs to the states and the nation, both; to the states mainly in the eastern part of the country, but in the west largely to the nation.

The Congress is urged to adopt at once a wise, active and thorough waterway policy. This belongs to the nation alone.

These recommendations are all good ones. We have no doubt that each governor is going home resolved to do his share toward bringing about the results outlined at the conference, and resolved that his state shall do its part. All has been done at this initial meeting that could have been expected to be done. Great movements cannot be got fully under way all at once; and we expect this movement, before it is through, to be one of the greatest of the twentieth century.

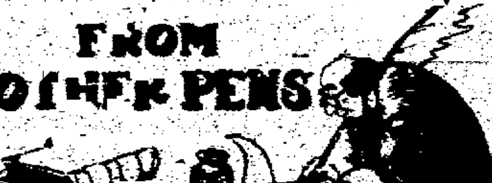

[illegible] Warren has come to the rescue of the [illegible] which gives them the salary provided by law, $7,000, instead of the $2,500 which is all Congress has been allowing them. The reason for the reduction of the appropriation in the first place was the allowance of certain fees to those officers, the amount of which was expected to, and in most cases did, more than make up the deficit; but at the last session these fees were cut off altogether, and it was only fair after that was done to make the salary what it was originally intended to be.

It is probable that the conference committee of the two houses of Congress will quickly settle on a currency bill and the bill agreed upon may be passed in two or three days; but how they are going to adjourn by Saturday we do not yet see. Of course, if Mr. Foraker could be induced to drop the Brownsville matter, or bring it to a vote on Friday, adjournment might be possible; but thus far he has been firm in his determination not only to have a vote, but to have a full discussion before the vote is taken.

Judge Hough of the United States court for the southern district of New York has decided that the President has power to dismiss a soldier summarily. Into the questions of wisdom in making the dismissal, or conduct on the part of the soldier leading to dismissal, the court did not go; it was dealing solely with the constitutional and legal power of the President. This decision settles, or should settle, one phase of the Brownsville question.

The Colorado members of the House are busy these days trying to edge in little appropriations into the sundry civil and other bills as they go through for the last time. Hitherto they have been remarkably successful at that sort of thing, and we have no doubt they are doing their best this year.

THE MAN AND HIS JOB

By Herbert J. Hapgood

The cause of many business blunders has been laid at the door of domestic infelicity. Mistakes are made at the office that can be accounted for in no other way. No man makes a blunder of his own free will and choice, for he knows that blunders cost money, and, what's more, they cost him money. Every mistake that an employe makes is a nail in the coffin of his business career, and it takes only a few of them to bring his once brilliant prospects to an untimely end.

When a man makes a mistake in business, he is probably not in his right mind. He does it because he is worried. There is a hidden rock somewhere in his stream of underconsciousness, and upon it are wrecked many of his soundest thoughts.

The worry that kills is not the kind popularly said to be caused by business cares, for such are merely obstacles to be overcome, and they stimulate a man to action rather than depress him and make his mind incapable of sound judgments. The renewing of credit, the thousand and one irritating matters of detail, and the handling of incompetent help, all present themselves to the business man merely as so many problems to be worked out. He masters them just as the builder or the engineer constructs his work in spite of quicksand and rock.

The worry that provokes business blunders, however, and paves the way to ultimate failure, is the kind hidden deep in a man's heart. It is never mentioned in the office. It is his secret sorrow, and it works its work of decay into the tissue of a prosperous business as the germ of some destructive disease.

A man has power to fight the cohorts of business competition, but domestic infelicity will undermine the most ably constructed industry. Small are the chances of success for the man with an unhappy home.

O'er Africa Mars rises red,
This day hath fitful chance ahead.

During the period beginning on this 139th day and lasting through many days, Mars holds a troubling position over Africa. Particularly the northeast and the west of the continent are menaced.

For the concerns of the day there is neither ill favor nor good to be seen in the aspects of the planets. Their positions are definite for naught and declare only that all things that have an end in chance are uncertain and uncontrolled except by blind, inscrutable fortune.

Quarrels are dangerous on all days afflicted with such vague configurations of the skies.

Deal with merchants who sell feminine apparel, transact business with professional men, but do not speculate.

"The Man Who Would Be King"

Jacques Lebaudy, the Son of a French Sugar Refiner, Has Determined to Establish Himself as a Monarch in the Sahara Desert.

From the Washington Post.

JACQUES LEBAUDY, "the man who would be king," and who succeeded in his desire to the extent of nominating himself "Emperor of Sahara," in Africa, thus going himself one better, so to speak, is a guest at the Hotel Astor, where he has been for several months, but very incognito, for he is registered under his family name, not as "Jacques I, Emperor of Sahara."

The "emperor," it may be mentioned, is many times a millionaire, his wealth having been estimated as more than $500,000,000. He is the son of a rich French sugar refiner who made many millions in that occupation. His present visit to the United States and Canada is not, as has been hinted, for the purpose of evading service of legal papers in connection with legal matters in France. M. Lebaudy is greatly averse to further newspaper notoriety, of which he has received a great deal, chiefly in connection with his fantastical decision, reached some years ago, to establish a made-to-order empire in the desert of Sahara, Africa, of which he would be the emperor. Certain steps in this direction were taken by him, but after becoming badly entangled with the French government, of which country he was at that time a subject, he abandoned his dreams of an "empire," renounced his allegiance to France, and became a British subject, grandiloquently threatening at the time that he might at some future day plant the flag of England in the desert of Sahara and other disagreeable places as a reproof and a taunt to France and its government.

"The Little Sugar Bowl."

Eccentricity seems to run in the Lebaudy family, for Jacques' brother, Max, spent millions of francs so prodigally that he became known throughout France as "le petit sucrier" (the little sugar bowl), among his beneficiaries having been several of the prettiest actresses in France. General Boulanger, since dead, who had aspirations to become the head of the French government; many politicians, adventurers, and others. When the French government ordered Max Lebaudy to prepare to perform the term of military service required of all able-bodied French citizens he objected to doing so, but the government insisted. M. Lebaudy was forced to comply, but died soon afterward while serving with the army, as a result, his relatives and friends declared, of having been compelled to do military duty while physically unfit; but the authorities insisted that his physical condition was due to other causes.

M. Jacques Lebaudy's monarchial aspirations have long been and even yet are a matter of decided amusement to the French government, and the people of that republic, their regard for him, perhaps not unnaturally, not being enhanced by reason of the fact that he has renounced the land of his birth. His determination to establish himself as a monarch in the Sahara desert, surrounded by a retinue modeled on court lines, with troops, subjects, servitors, and whatnot, has been a subject for ridicule in France for many years but it may be explained that he is not at present "on the job," the French, Spanish and Moroccan governments, tired of his nonsense, having "sat down" on his claims to territory which it had been proved belonged, at times, to one or another of the two last-named countries, notwithstanding his assertion that 183 miles of the African seaboard being "no man's land," according to his claim, was, per se, his to lay claim to.

It was in 1903 that M. Lebaudy quietly fitted out an expedition for the west coast of Africa, the exact destination being the Moorish mud-house town of Troja, which is between Cape Bojador and Cape Juby, opposite the Canary Islands.

Lebaudia.

The first definite news which the French government obtained of the outfit was contained in a dispatch which announced that a well-armed and otherwise equipped expedition under Lebaudy's command had landed near Troja, after having visited Las Palmas, in the Canary Islands, where he arrived in his private yacht Frasquita, and purchased a flotilla of fishing craft, which he manned with sailors from Havre and Cadiz, whom he engaged at Las Palmas. He raised the "royal" standard at Troja, and, true to the declaration he made to friends in Paris that he would establish a realm of his own, named it Lebaudia. His plans in Africa, it was said, included the building of a harbor and also a city commensurate in size with the dignity of his "kingdom," to be followed by the construction of a railway to the interior.

This much appeared on the surface, but it began to be whispered in France that under the guise of a fantastical expedition Lebaudy was in search of mining treasures in the mountainous district of the interior, none of which, it may be said, were ever found in Lebaudia. It was remembered that soon after the end of the Boer war Lebaudy made a trip to Johannesburg and while there, in addition to investigating certain territory adjoining the famous Robinson mines, gave other evidence of obtaining all possible information about prospecting for mineral.

However, there could be no doubt that M. Lebaudy took his undertaking very seriously. He positively asserted that he was in possession of documents which would prove beyond contestation that the territory of Africa which he sought to appropriate was in fact "no man's land." Part of the coast which he tried to occupy extended a distance of 183 miles. Although he claimed it to be "no man's land" it is inhabited by quasi-independent Moorish tribes. Moreover, in 1895, the British government issued a note recognizing the coast as far south as Cape Bojador as belonging to Morocco. Two years later, however, a convention was signed between France and Spain recognizing the coast-line from Cape Blanco to a few miles below Cape Juby, together with a part of the hinterland, as being under Spanish control. It was thus claimed that Lebaudy and those who with him were regarded as filibusters had [illegible] territory officially recognized as being Spanish.

The Empire du Sahara.

In July, 1903, M. Cadiou, administrator of the Inscription Maritime at Paris, which corresponds to the naval reserve, received a letter bearing Spanish stamps and marked "Empire du Sahara." The envelope contained yet another envelope addressed, "His Majesty the Emperor of Sahara, at Troja, via Las Palmas, Canary Islands. Postal service gratis from Las Palmas to Troja by the imperial Sahara line."

The letter to M. Cadiou also contained an inclosure from an "aide-de-camp," named Hirouk, informing M. Cadiou that two French sailors, named Charles Jegou and Joseph Bourdice, who had been engaged in the service of the "emperor," had been made prisoners by a band of Moorish robbers, who demanded 4,000 francs for their ransom, and adding that the "emperor" was preparing to send an expedition to rescue or avenge them. Meantime, the "aide-de-camp" announced, the "Emperor" intended sending money to aid the families of the prisoners.

M. Cadiou at first imagined that some one was seeking to play a joke on him, but upon making inquires through a French official at Havre, he discovered that the assertion about Bourdice, at least, was true, and that he was only one of twenty French sailors who had been engaged by the "Emperor" at Las Palmas. At Cape Juby they had been landed and told to proceed to Troja, but they had no idea where Troja was to be found. The party of twenty set out for the interior, making inquiries by the way, but [illegible] except the two men who were captured later returned to Cape Juby. In August, 1903, the two captives were rescued from the hands of the Moors by a French war vessel, the Sultan of Morocco having ordered their release.

"The Imperial Life Guards."

The summer of the same year Lebaudy's yacht was seized for flying the Portuguese flag instead of the "royal" standard of Lebaudia, but through French influence this infraction of governmental discourtesy was overlooked and the incident forgotten.

M. Lebaudy decided in January, 1904, to organize a military body to be known as the "imperial life guards," the officers and men to consist of those who had served either in the Roosevelt Rough Riders during the war between the United States and Spain or the Seventeenth Lancers or Royal Horse Artillery of the English army. The "emperor" went so far as to cause, "by royal command," a communication to be addressed to President Roosevelt inviting him to name any former officers or men of the Rough Riders whom he could personally recommend and who would be willing to serve in the army of the "emperor." Col. George Gouraud, who for many years was the personal representative in England of Thomas A. Edison, and who, "by gracious permission of his majesty, the Emperor of Sahara," held the appointment of "governor general of Sahara," was announced as the organizer of the military forces of Lebaudia.

The military establishment, it was explained in the communication to President Roosevelt, contemplated the organization of two battalions of "imperial life guards," the first to be officered exclusively by Americans who had been members of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, the noncommissioned officers and men also to have belonged to that organization, while the second battalion was to consist of retired officers and men of the Seventeenth English Lancers and of the Royal Horse Artillery. These troops, it was declared, were to form the "Emperor's" personal bodyguard, and were expected to be ready at all times to "fight, bleed and die" for him and for the Saharan monarchy. The ordinary troops comprising the army of "Jacques I" were to consist of Saharans and Arabs, who are among the finest riders in the world. The plan of organization also provided for a Saharan constabulary force, which was to police Lebaudia in the same manner as does the Northwest mounted police in Canada, and was to consist of American negroes. The active management of the entire military force was to be in charge of a retired British army officer.

Letter to President Roosevelt.

The wording of the reply sent by President Roosevelt to the communication of "Jacques I," if, indeed, any notice whatever was taken of it, definitely is not known, but it is reported that when the president handed the letter to Gen. Leonard A. Wood, formerly of the Rough Riders, for his amusement and inspection, he accompanied it by the single word "fudge" and promptly gave no further thought to the communication from the "Emperor of Sahara."

The plans for the founding of Lebaudia also provided for the allotment of extensive farming lands to officers and men of the Saharan army who had completed terms of service with honor.

The emigration of American negroes to the empire was also to be encouraged, only such negroes to be received as were selected and approved by reliable agents of the "emperor," who were to be scattered throughout the United States.

The rulers of Europe, however, as well as President Roosevelt, did not look with encouragement upon the pretensions of "Jacques I" and his strong manifestations of a desire to be neighborly. In a final attempt to gain official recognition of his "empire," M. Lebaudy dispatched his mother from Paris to the Vatican in January, 1904, bearing $2,000 in "Peter's pence," to the pope, it being Mme. Lebaudy's actual mission to induce the Vatican to institute an apostolic prefecture for the territory covered by the "Empire of Sahara." "Jacques," in turn, to appoint a diplomatic representative at the Vatican. His holiness, however, in plain words, expressed his disapproval of the plan, and Mme. Lebaudy's visit, therefore, was fruitless.

The strong disfavor with which the governments of France and Spain regarded the project to establish the "Empire of Sahara" served as a guide for the attitude of other governments also toward the self-made emperor, and in no country were his plans regarded seriously. Indeed, so strongly did the French government express its views regarding the "Emperor of Sahara" and convey its intention of what would be done in a forcible, businesslike way to the "emperor" if he did not stop making a nuisance of himself to the French as well as to other governments that "Jacques I" resolved upon a drastic method of reprisal and revenge.

He promptly knocked the props from under his monarchial house of cards by withdrawing his "court" from Lebaudia, bidding a tearful farewell to Lebaudia, and renouncing his French citizenship by declaring his allegiance to his fellow-ruler, King Edward of England.

An incident in modern history that may be historic was the recent meeting in William Carey's library at Serampore, of delegates from many Christian churches throughout India, who gathered to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the arrival of Henry Martyn in India. On this occasion there was organized the National Missionary Society of India, under native support and management, but in co-operation with existing missionary bodies, to extend Christianity into all parts of the land.

DANCING SEASON OPENS

CROWDS WILL ATTEND PRESS CLUB EVENT TONIGHT.

Sixteen-Piece Orchestra Will Play From 8 to 11 o'Clock at Stratton Park Pavilion.

Under the auspices of the Pikes Peak Press club, and with the biggest orchestra that has ever played at a dance in this city, the Stratton park pavilion will be opened for the season this evening.

Director Irvine will have on hand a 16-piece orchestra of expert musicians. A concert of a half an hour will precede the dance, and this will prove an attraction not only to dancers but to music lovers as well. The concert, in which will be played the latest music, will begin at 8 o'clock and dancing at 8:30.

The dance program will be particularly attractive, the best, latest and catchiest numbers, including the "Merry Widow" waltz, being included. For a long time dancers have been awaiting the opening of the summer season, and there is every indication that the opening night at Stratton park will draw a record-breaking crowd. The fact that the orchestra is the largest that has ever played for a dance in this region—and also one of the best—is a feature that will appeal to hundreds.

The Pikes Peak Press club is an organization composed of the members of the editorial, reportorial and business departments of the newspapers of the city.

Tickets for the dance are on sale at many of the leading stores and may also be obtained at the park tonight. They are only 50 cents each.

A large number of extra street cars will be out to handle the crowd.

Enthusiasts From All Parts of State Come Here in Machines to Spend Sunday.

The popularity of Colorado Springs as a visiting place for automobile parties who want a pleasant Sunday outing was well exemplified in front of the Alta Vista hotel yesterday afternoon when not less than 10 automobiles were to be seen at one time, all of them filled with guests that had driven in from Denver, Pueblo, Canon City, Florence and other places. At the Antlers hotel also a half-dozen automobile enthusiasts registered yesterday from Denver and Pueblo and the hotel men say that this form of amusement is becoming much more popular this season than ever before. BIG CUT IS GENERAL

ALL BUILDING MATERIALS ARE GREATLY REDUCED.

Local Lumbermen's Association Takes United Action and Activity Will Be Stimulated as Result.

At a meeting of the Colorado Springs Lumbermen's association held last Thursday, it was decided to materially reduce prices of [illegible] commodities handled by local dealers, the new schedule to take effect today. The reduction is caused by the decline in wholesale market prices and is general, affecting other materials as well as lumber, including hardware, corrugated iron, paints, mill work, etc. Since the cost of plumbing and heating has also been substantially reduced recently, it is expected that the general reduction in the price of materials of all kinds will greatly stimulate building activity in Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou.

G. C. Hemenway, president and general manager of the El Paso Lumber company, estimates that the present cost of building in this vicinity is from 15 to 20 per cent lower than it has been for the last two or three years.

The members of the local lumbermen's association are: The Newton Lumber and Manufacturing companies of Colorado Springs and Colorado City and the Crissey-Fowler and Houston Lumber companies of this city.

FOXHALL KEENE IN SPRINGS

At Antlers for Brief Stay—Thinks Governor of New York Has Killed Himself Politically.

That Governor Hughes of New York state has killed himself politically by his opposition to the law legalizing bookmaking at the race tracks under certain restrictions was the opinion expressed by Foxhall Keene, the noted clubman and polo player of New York, who is at the Antlers on a brief visit to this city.

"The law to which Governor Hughes objects," said Mr. Keene, "has been on the statute books of New York for at least 14 years, and has been declared constitutional by the court of appeals of the United States. It has won the tacit approval of such men as President Roosevelt, one of the greatest presidents we have ever had, who never objected to the law when he was governor nor since, and, moreover, received the indorsement of Governor Hughes himself when he was making the race for governor. At that time he assured the people who are interested in race track matters that the law was perfectly agreeable to him and on that ground received the votes of every lover of sport in the state. For a year after Hughes was elected he made no objection to the law and it was not until the presidential campaign that we heard from him. It looks very much like playing to the gallery and I think he will not further his political ambitions by his action. In fact, I think he has killed his chances for higher political honors. Our legislature [illegible] passed laws that we shall not drink and that we shall not gamble. Soon I expect they will be passing laws that we shall not eat or that we shall eat only what is specified by some commission or other."

Turning to the question of his visit to Colorado Springs, Mr. Keene said he was here only for a brief rest and had not brought with him any polo ponies.

"I think Colorado Springs is very unique in its way," he said. "For I never run across anybody here that is not happy and contented. I like the city and the people for that reason. I have seen other resorts where the people who were compelled to live there on account of their health were always complaining and dissatisfied but one never sees that in Colorado Springs even among those who have to live here for no other reasons than the good of their health."

Mr. Keene visits this city frequently and has many warm friends here. He has taken part in a number of polo tournaments at the Country club.

Falls From Car on "Figure Eight" at the Zoo.

Falling from a rapidly moving car on the "Figure Eight" at the Zoo last night, A. Smith of 222 South Wahsatch avenue, escaped with only slight injuries. About 8:45 o'clock Smith was riding on one of the cars when his hat flew off and he attempted to catch it. In doing so he lost his balance and fell from the car to the ground below, a distance of about 30 feet. The city ambulance was summoned and he was taken to St. Francis hospital, it being feared that his injuries were serious. At the hospital examination was made by Dr. E. L. Timmons, and it was found that he was not seriously hurt, no bones being broken. His injuries consist of a lame back and severe bruises. It was stated that he will probably be out within a few days.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON AND YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

THE APEX OF HISTORY.

The International Sunday School Lesson for May 24 is "Jesus' Death and Burial." John 19:17-42.

By Winfield Scott.

Every pen is timid when it approaches the greatest theme in the world—the climax of history, toward which all the preceding centuries had trended, and from which all subsequent events date. Such is the death of Jesus Christ, which is the Sunday school lesson to be studied this week by millions. It is the "old, old story," the theme of countless songs, stories and sermons, yet ever fresh and vital.

In this column it is impossible even so much as to sketch the story, or to indicate its profoundest meanings to mankind. Since every name and incident of the great tragedy has become eloquent with suggestiveness, I shall merely attempt to present and characterize the actors and the scenes. So a survey of the inspired narrative reveals:

The Crafty Jews—Humanly speaking, back of the death of Jesus, as its cause, we find the hate and jealousy and bigotry of these contriving, conscienceless ecclesiastical politicians. They were the power behind the judge and the executioner—the world's example of the lengths to which narrow sectarianism can go. What must the patient Jehovah think of religious intolerance.

The Cowardly Ruler—Pilate's conduct gave the world a new synonym for what is contemptible. He typifies the man afraid for his job—the truckler, the trimmer, the opportunist, the politician. He wanted to please everybody, so he succeeded in pleasing nobody. Because he was not brave enough to do his duty, Pilate must forever bear the odium of having delivered the just Jesus to death.

The Callous Soldiers—A large part of the world is not fine-fibered, sensitive-souled or sympathetic. It can look upon the deepest sorrows merely as incidents to minister to its dull interest. In the crisis of the world's history, these rude soldiers saw in the great-hearted Jesus only an occasion for rude sport. So they put him through a mock trial, heaping upon his patient spirit the grossest indignities; and when he was dying they regarded him merely as an entertaining spectacle, whose raiment might be gambled for. From all crassness of soul and consequent blindness to greatness, Good Lord, deliver us!

The Curious Crowd—Anything for diversion is the rabble's motto. A fatal accident, a dog fight, a street fakir—anything that promises a moment's interest attracts the crowd. Jesus was only an object of curiosity to the thoughtless multitude, which now cried "Crucify him!" as lustily as it had shortly before cried "Hosanna!" There are few sadder sights in the world to such a great heart as beat in the breast of Jesus, than a fickle, impulsive, amusement-hungry crowd. Alas, that the crowd should usually vote for the destruction of its best friend!

The Compassionate Women—Artificial social conditions may put a hard and cold and selfish veneer upon some women, but womanhood as a whole has a heart quick to pity. While the mob jeered Jesus, some pitiful women wept for him. Among his friends it was the women who at all times understood him best and were "last at the cross and first at the grave." Woman's reward has been that she has found in Mary's Son her ideal of friendship; the One whose compassion has, in turn, eased her heaviest sorrows, and who has been her comprehending, sympathetic Friend.

The Cross-Bearing Cyrenian—Once the load of Jesus grew too heavy for him; he staggered, stumbled and fell beneath his cross, so that he knows all about those who since have been in like case. Then, Simon, whose sons, and probably himself also, later became disciples of the Crucified, was made to bear the load of the Condemned One. He was earliest of that line of privileged suffering ones who have shared the sorrows of the Lord—and have been rewarded by entrance into the fellowship of joy.

The Crest of Calvary—A little knoll of ground, skull-shaped, makes Jerusalem different from all other cities; and has drawn the bravest soldiers, the tenderest hearts, the wisest brains, in loving pilgrimage thereto. This hill called Calvary is the world's highest point; it is the apex of history. For there was enacted the greatest event in the annals of the universe; there, on the cross of common malefactor, God "gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life." Calvary's crest—the refuge of all broken hearts, the beacon of hope for all who sin.

The Crucified Christ—"There they crucified him." Awful mystery! What was the supreme agony of that culminating hour? Not the excruciating physical pain, we are sure. Was it the thought that the world which he loved did not comprehend? Was it the turning away of the Father's face? Was it the inexpressible load of human sin which he bore? We only know that here on this cross, in the person of Jesus, heaven and earth met—a just God and a sinning race were reconciled. In the travail of Christ's soul salvation for man was born.

The Contemptuous Title—Feeble, fearful, fat-witted Pilate was of those who can never discern an appropriate season. He chose the crucifixion of this Man, whom he believed to be innocent, and whose presence had moved him strangely, as the occasion for a petty act of spite against the Jews. He "got even" with them by inscribing, contemptuously, over the head of One whom the law had pronounced a criminal, "This is Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." The aristocratic Pharisees frothed and fumed, but Pilate had a small man's stubbornness. Yet, though he knew it not, the Roman governor wrote aright.

The Contrite Thief—Most of us are too busy to take thought for the thousands of condemned criminals who at this moment languish in prison. Jesus, when in the crisis of the universe's supreme transaction, had time for a thought of pity and pardon for a condemned thief. He saved the man who repented at the eleventh hour and sought his help; so there is hope to the end for the worst. But only one man was so succored; therefore we dare not be presumptuous.

The Considerate Son—Some Christians think they are so busy saving the world that they have not leisure to be decent to their own families. Jesus was a gentleman, even in death. As he hung dying he thought of his mother, and provided for her future by committing her to the care of loyal John, his best friend.

The Clear-Eyed Christ—The custom still exists in the orient of drugging condemned criminals to make them insensible to their sufferings. Jesus refused any opiate. He met that supreme test of heroism, willingness to encounter its sufferings clear-eyed and face to face. Jesus took up to the full limit of that was coming to him. Well does George Eliot say that the great thing in life is "to do without opium."

The Convulsion of Nature—Extraordinary natural phenomena—the midday darkness, the rending of the temple veil, the earthquake, the opening of graves and the resurrection of the dead—accompanied the death of Jesus. Inanimate nature was aware of the immeasurable significance of the tragedy that was being enacted on the hill outside Jerusalem's wall; only man was heedless of it.

The Convinced Centurion—Many men of sober, thoughtful, responsible minds, when they have looked upon the crucifixion of Jesus, have been moved to exclaim, with the Centurion, "Truly This Was the Son of God." Jesus was never so divine as in his ignominious death. That sacrifice, that vicarious suffering, that world-embracing love, were beyond the power of man, and possible only to God. The sight of Jesus crucified, spear-pierced and anguished, breaks the proud and stubborn heart of man.

The Converted Aristocrats—What his words of wisdom and his matchless life could not do, Jesus' death accomplished. The fearful secret disciples were nerved to boldness by the cross; for it is the cross that shames human pride and cowardice. Even the aristocratic members of the Sanhedrin, Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus, sacrificing policy to the winds, and came forward as open disciples of the Crucified, to give to his body the belated devotion which they had failed to give to its tenant when he needed it more. Joseph gave his new garden with its sepulchre. ("In every garden there is a sepulchre, and in near every sepulchre there is a garden"), and Nicodemus brought lavishly of the wealth which he had formerly prized. All too late, they saw that the best use of life's best treasures is to place them freely and fearlessly at the service of the Savior who ungrudgingly laid down his life that men might find pardon, peace and power.

THE CHRISTIAN AS A CITIZEN

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer Meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Union, Epworth League, etc.—for May 24-is, "Being a Christian, III. At the Ballot Box." Ps. 33:1-9.

(By William T. Ellis.)

Patriotism is a holy thing. It is born of God, and finds its best expression in the solemn crises of national life. It is impossible to those who have not the spirit of reverence, and it is best expressed by the most thoughtful and faithful citizens. Patriotism ranks with love of God and love of home. These three are inseparable.

We can prove our patriotism as well by the way we handle a hoe as by the way we handle a musket.

Patriotism is a deep thing, and vastly more than an outburst of enthusiasm for the national colors. We should study its character and its pre-eminent claims upon us, so that we may be patriots from conviction as well as from impulse. Follow out the principle of patriotism and observe how it condemns the holding of public office for private gain. See how indissolubly it is bound up with obedience to all law. Understand its relation to the ballot box and to the school house. In a word, become a wise as well as an earnest patriot, and you will find a thousand opportunities for the exercise of patriotism where you thought there was one.

He who is a slave to any political party is not living up to the high privileges of patriotism.

The people love the nation; of that there can be no question. Sometimes though they do not love wisely. They forget what are the essentials to her welfare. They become so engrossed in their private pursuits and so blinded by the self-interest or prejudice that they cease to keep zealous watch over her fundamental principles. This indifference of the people is the greatest peril of the state. No nation is safe when her citizens are not open eyed to her welfare.

God will be glorified when our politics are purified.

Ignorance is the enemy of patriotism.

Of all the early days of our nation it may be said as of the creation of the world. "In the beginning, God." And the most real and vital danger of our country is that we should depart from God in our national life and cease to own him as our real Ruler.

True patriotism remembers that "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people."

Bravery helps make a nation safe. A nation of cowards cannot be a strong nation. Men and women who dare fling themselves against great odds for the sake of their convictions; who do not shrink from crying out against any evil that may menace the purity of the government; who will, if need be, sever all political, social and financial ties for love of country—these are the heroes to whom a nation resorts in her hour of need.

We should serve our nation for the Kingdom's sake, and serve the Kingdom for the nation's sake.

True men are a nation's best defense.

The true patriots are not the politicians who talk loudly about the flag and then rob the coffers of the nation. Those citizens are the real patriots who quietly and faithfully do their duty by the state and their fellowmen, holding in reverence the laws and institutions of the land.

The extent of our dominions is an indication of the need of broadminded citizens.

They are most worthy of our country's past who are living to make its future better.

Patriotism is open-eyed. It is not blind to the faults and dangers of the country, but is loyal enough and brave enough to acknowledge and to try to remedy them. Blind zeal is not patriotism.

Patriotism makes statesmen; partisanship, politicians.

Here is Amos R. Wells' picture of a prosperous nation: Its citizens are contented with moderate means; its rich men hold their wealth as a public trust. Public office is looked upon as an honor; it is not spoiled by the spoilsman. It has a reverence for its great past, but is not so bound by it that it cannot make for itself a greater future. In its exchanges it makes no sale of honor; in its schools it teaches character as well as science; in its pulpits it fearlessly opposes worldliness. The balance of earthly trade may be against such a nation, but from the bank of heaven it will be drawing a vast and constantly increasing dividend.

NEWS AND NOTES.

The antiopium movement, which is making such progress in China, is overshadowing the similar undertaking in the Philippines. By act of Congress all importations of opium into the Philippines ceased March 1. No native can now procure the drug, consequently 20,000 Filipinos have abandoned the habit. Chinese living in the islands are allowed to use it only by securing a license, the fee of which is increased every month, while the amount they can purchase decreases monthly. According to the Churchman, about 5,500 Chinese held license under the former law, but under the new law there are only 400 licensed users, and the number is constantly diminishing. The total consumption of opium in the entire archipelago last November was only 15 per cent of what it has been under the old law, while public sentiment, even among the Chinese, is in favor of the enforcement of the prohibition law.

A plan has been formulated by an official committee of Congregationalists whereby, if the scheme is adopted, the benevolent offerings of the churches will be lumped, and each congregation's share apportioned to it, the total amount desired being $2,000,000. This will be divided among boards, and all special appeals will thus be done away with.

The physicians of the Southern Methodist church who number about 8,000, have organized a medical missionary association. They intend to build and maintain a missionary hospital on the foreign field.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS

We desire to be classified according to our exceptional virtues; we are apt to classify our neighbor according to his exceptional faults.—Henry Bates Dimond.

There is no evil comparable in its effect or character to that of a craven submission to manifest wrong.—Lowell.

admonition; if twice, it is condemnation.—Anon.

We may fail a thousand times, but as long as we are abashed of our failure, as long as we do not try to comfort ourselves for it by a careful parade of our other virtues, we are in the pilgrim's road.—Arthur Christopher Benson.

If thou wishest to be wise
Keep these words before thine eyes—
What thou speakest, and how, beware,
